

UC Irvine Division of Endocrinology, Department of Medicine Grand Rounds

Testosterone in Women: The Data We Have, and the Data We Keep Ignoring

May 27, 2026 – 11:30 AM

Teleconference

Target Audience

Specialties – Medicine, Endocrinology

Professions – Physician, Physician Assistant, Resident Physician

Objectives

At the conclusion of this activity, the participant should be able to:

- 1 Present difficult and interesting cases to their co-fellows and faculty members of various departments.
- 2 Cite a variety of endocrine disease processes, including how to work up patients, come up with proper diagnoses, and develop treatment plans including pharmacological and lifestyle approaches to treatment.
- 3 Discuss with physicians from other specialties such as Neurosurgery, Radiology, ENT, Pathology, Oncology, and nuclear medicine to get a multi-disciplinary approach to enhance learning.
- 4 Nurture innovation and the quest for new treatment strategies to help provide the highest quality, most comprehensive care to our patients.
